a quiet night's rest with knocking me up. Arbutnot.
TROUBLESOMELY. adv. [from troublesome.] Vexatiously;
wearisomely; unseasonably; importunately.
Though men will not be so troublesomely critical as to correct others in the use of words; yet where truth is concerned, it can be no fault to desire their explication. Locke.
TROUBLESOMENESS. n. f. [from troublesome.]
1. Vexatiousness; uneasiness.
The lord treasurer, he complained of the troublesomeness of the place, for that the exchequer was so empty: the chancellor answered, be of good cheer, for now you shall see the bottom of your business at the first. Bacon.
2. Importunity; unseasonableness.
TROUBLOUS. adj. [from trouble.] Tumultuous; confused;

That spoil'd your summer fields and fruitful vines,
Swills your warm blood like wash, and makes his trough
In your embow'd bosoms. Shaksp. Rich. III.
They had no ships but big troughs, which they call canoes.
Where there is a good quick fall of rain water, lay a half trough of stone, of a good length, three foot deep, with one end upon the high ground, the other upon the low; cover the trough with brakes a good thickness, and cast sand upon the top of the brakes, the lower end of the trough will run like a spring of water. Bacon's Nat. Hist. No. 29.
Some logs, perhaps, upon the water swam,
An useless drift, which rudely cut within,
And hollow'd, first a floating trough became,
And cross some riv'let passage did begin. Dryden.
The water dissolves the particles of salt mixed in the stone, and is conveyed by long troughs and canals from the mines to Hall, where it is received in vast cisterns and boiled off. Add.
TO TROUL. v. n. [trollen, to roll, Dutch.] See TROLL.

| 5760 | | | |
- The Romans left their ounce in Britain, now our averdu-pois ounce, for our troy ounce we had elsewhere. Arbutnot.
TRUANT. n. f. [truand, Old Fr. trouvant, Dutch, avagabond.]
An idler; one who wanders idly about, neglecting his duty or employment. To wander the truant is, in schools, to stay from school without leave.
For my part I may speak it to my shame,
I have a truant been to chivalry. Shaksp.
I have a truant been to chivalry,
Though myself have been an idle truant,
Omitting the sweet benefit of time,
To cloath mine age with angel-like perfection,
Yet hath Sir Protheus made fair advantage of his days.
Providence would only initiate mankind into the knowledge of her treasures, leaving the rest to our industry, that we might not live like idle loiterers and truants. Mora.
Our ships are laden with the Trojan store,
And you like truants come too late ashore. Dryden's Æn.
TRUANT. adj. Idle; wandering from business; lazy; loitering.
What keeps you from Wertemberg?
—A truant disposition, good my lord. Shaksp. Hamlet.
He made a blushing cital of himself,
And chid his truant youth with such a grace,
As if he master'd there a double spirit,
Of teaching, and of learning instantly.
Where thou seest a single sheep remain
In shades aloof, or couch'd upon the plain,
Or late to lag behind with truant pace,
Revenge the crime, and take the traitor's head. Dryden.
TO TRUANT. v. n. [truander, to beg about a country, French;
trouant, old German.] To idle at a distance from duty;

Leagues and truces made between superstitious persons, and such as serve God aright. Hooker, b. v.
They pray in vain to have sin pardoned, which seek not also to prevent sin by prayer, even every particular sin, by prayer against all sin, except men can name some transgression wherewith we ought to have truce. Hooker.
All this utter'd
With gentle breath, calm look, knees humbly bent,
Could not make truce with the unruly spleen
Of Tybalt, deaf to peace. Shaksp.
This token serveth for a flag of truce
Betwixt ourselves, and all our followers. Shaksp.
Men shall be lovers of their own selves, without natural affection, truce breakers. 2 Tim. iii. 3.
Least the truce with treason should be mixt,
'Tis my concern to have the tree betwixt.
Shadwell till death true dulness would maintain;
And in his father's rights, and realm's defence,
Ne'er would have peace with wit, nor truce with sense. Dryd.
2. Cession; intermission; short quiet.
There he may find Truce to his restless thoughts, and entertain
The irksome hours. Milton.
TRUCIDATION. n. f. [from truido, Lat.] The act of killing.

The Indians truck gold for glalls. L'Estrange.
Go, miser! go; for lucre sell thy soul,
Truck wares for wares, and trudge from pole to pole;
That men may say, when thou art dead and gone,
See, what a vast estate he left his son. Dryden.
I see nothing left us, but to truck and barter our goods like the wild Indians, with each other. Swift.
TRUCK. n. f. [from the verb.]
1. Exchange; traffic by exchange.
It is no less requisite to maintain a truck in moral offices, than in the common business of commerce. L'Estrange.
Love is covetous; I must have all of you: heart for heart is an equal truck. Dryden.
2. [trugur] Wooden wheels for carriage of cannon. Ains.
TRUCKLEBED, or TRUNDLEBED. n. f. [properly trucklebed; from truckle, Latin, or trugus.] A bed that runs on wheels under a higher bed.
There's his chamber, his house, his castle, his standing bed and trucklebed. Shaksp. Merry Wives of Windsor.
If he that is in battle slain,
Be in the bed of honour lain;
He that is beaten may be said,
To lie in honour's trucklebed. Hudibras, p. i.
TO TRUCKLE. v. n. [This word is, I believe, derived from trucklebed, which is always under another bed.] To be in a state of subjection or inferiority; to yield; to creep.
Shall our nation be in bondage thus Unto a land that truckles under us. Clarendon.
For which so many a legal cuckold
Has been run down in courts and truckle'd. Hudibras.
Men may be stiff and obstinate upon a wrong ground, and ply and truckle too upon as false a foundation. L'Estrange.
Religion itself is forced to truckle to worldly policy. Norris.
His zeal was not to lash our crimes,
But discontent against the times;
For had we made him timely offers,
To raise his post or fill his coffers:
Perhaps he might have truckle'd down,
Like other brethren of his gown. Swift.
They were subdued and insulted by Alexander's captains, and continued under several revolutions, a small truckle state, of no name till they fell under the Romans. Swift.

TRUCULENT. adj. [truculentus, Lat.]
1. Savage; barbarous.
A barbarous Scythia where the savage and truculent inhabitants transfer themselves from place to place in waggons, as they can find pasture, and live upon milk, and flesh roasted in the sun at the points of their faddles. Ray.
2. Terrible of aspect.
3. Destructive; cruel.
Pestilential feminaries, according to their grossness or subtlety, cause more or less truculent plagues, some of such malignity, that they encrease in two hours. Harvey on the Plague.
TO TRUDGE. v. n. [truggiare, Italian.] To travel laboriously; to jog on; to march heavily on.
No man is secure, but night-walking heralds,
That trudge between the king and mistress Shore. Shaksp.

TRU

- No sooner was he fit to trudge,
But both made ready to dislodge. Hudibras, p. iii.
Away they trudged together, and about midnight got to their journey's end. L'Estrange's Fables.
Go, miser! go; for lucre sell thy soul,
Truck wares for wares, and trudge from pole to pole;
That men may say, when thou art dead and gone,
See, what a vast estate he left his son! Dryden.
Once a poor rogue, 'tis true, I trod the street,
And trudge'd to Rome upon my naked feet;
Gold is the greatest god. Dryden's Juvenal.
He that will know the truth, must leave the beaten track, which none but fervile minds trudge continually in. Locke.
TRUE. adj. [træpa, trupa, Saxon.]
1. Not false; not erroneous; agreeing with fact, or with the nature of things.
Of those he chose he falsest two,
And fittest for to forge true seeming lies. Fairy Qu. b. i.

—Let it be so; thy truth then be thy dower. Shaksp.
Do not see
My fair rose wither; yet look up; behold,
That you in pity may dissolve to dew,
And wash him fresh again with true love tears. Shaksp.
The first great work
Is, that yourself may to yourself be true. Roscommon.
I'll rather die
Deserted, than oblige thee with a fact Pernicious to thy peace, chiefly assur'd
Remarkably so late of thy true.
So faithful, love unequal'd. Milton's Par. Lost, b. ix.
When this fire is kindled, both sides inflame it: all regard of merit is lost in persons employed, and these only chosen that are true to the party. Temple.
Smil'd Venus, to behold her own true knight Obtain the conquest, though he lost the fight. Dryden.
True to the king her principles are found;
Oh that her practice were but half so found!
Stedfast in various turns of state she stood,
And seal'd her vow'd affection with her blood. Dryden.
The truth hearts for Voiture heav'd with sighs;
Voiture was wept by all the brightest eyes. Pope.
True to his charge the bard preserv'd her long
In honour's limits, such the pow'r of song. Pope.
6. Honest; not fraudulent.
The thieves have bound the true man: now could thou and I rob the thieves and go merrily to London, it would be argument for a week. Shaksp. Henry IV.
If king Edward be as true and just,
As I am subtle, false, and treacherous,
This day should Clarence closely be mew'd up. Shaksp.
7. Exact; truly conformable to a rule.
If all those great painters, who have left us such fair platforms, had rigorously observed it, they had made things inore regularly true, but withal very unpleasing. Dryden's Dunciad.
He drew
A circle regularly true. Prior.
Ticke's first book does not want its merit; but I was disappointed in my expectation of a translation nicely true to the original; whereas in those parts where the greatest exact-ness seems to be demanded, he has been the least careful. Arb.
8. Rightful.
They seize the sceptre;
Then lose it to a stranger, that the true
Anointed King Messiah might be born Bar'd of his right. Milton.
True-born. n. f. [træne and born.] Having a right by birth.
Where'er I wander, boast of this I can,
Though banish'd, yet a trueborn Englishman. Shaksp.
Let him that is a truborn gentleman,
And stands upon the honour of his birth,
From off this briar pluck a white rose with me. Shaksp.
27 A TRUEBORN.
